SENATE. Several bills were introduced and re-

On motion of Mr. Morton, the president was requested to communicate information concerning the slave trade on the coast of Africa, and what measures had been taken by Great Britain and other governments for its suppression. Mr. Sumner said in view of the reorganization of the committees, he would be compelled by the instructions of his physician to ask to be excused from the service of any committee. Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, called up the bill for the endowment of national colleges and spoke thereon. At the conclusion of Mr. Morrill's address, the further consideration of the bill was postponed for a week, and the senate adjourned. Mr. Thurman will be made chairman of the committee on private land claims, and Casserly of the committee on engrossed bills. The house then resumed the consideration of the bill providing for the construction of ten sloops of war. Mr. Potter contended it was not practicable for vessels of 500 or 600 tons to carry ten large guns; that the statement made by Mr. Scoffeld, chairman of the naval committee, was not correct, but that the statement made by Mr. Platt, that vessels should be from 1,500 to 2,000 tons. was nearer the mark. Such vessels could not be built for anything like the sum mentioned. Such vessels for war purposes would cost from $800,000 to $1,000,000. He believed the actual cost of these vessels would approach $1,000,000 for each one. He contended that the house was entitled to more information than it had received on the subject, and to have a matured plan submitted for consideration before called upon to vote for this bill. Mr. Garfield offered an amendment providing that no contract or order for the construction of these vessels be made till a full detailed estimate was submitted to congress, and appropriations made there-

Mr. Myers said the bill gave the secretary full authority to build these vessels, and no doubt six or seven of them would be built in the navy yard, but it would be still optional for the secretary to build several at private yards. This discretion he was willing to give, but above all he wanted the ships built, and it would be a subject of congratulation that this necessary project would give employment to thousands of skilled mechanics and

The honse under operation of previous question agreed, by 77 to 55, to Mr. Hale's amendment requiring half the vessels to be built in private yards; to Mr. Bank's amendment making a provision as to guns, that they not exceed ten; to Mr. Garfield's amendment requiring plans and estimates be submitted congress and appropriations made before work commenced, and to Cox's amendment reducing the number of vessels from ten to six. The last-named amendment was adopted by a vote of 104 to 66. The bill, as amended, passed,

A motion to adjourn to Monday was defeated. Adjourned.
